

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

October 29, 2010

I send greetings to those attending the United States Army Warrant Officers Association's (USAWOA) 38th Annual Meeting of the Members.

Throughout our history, each generation summoned to protect our country in its hour of need has done so with honor and courage. Our service members have left the comfort and safety of home to defend America, knowing the risks inherent in their choice, and their families have stood by their sides. All are heroes, and our grateful Nation is forever indebted to them.

Organizations like USAWOA have worked tirelessly to improve the lives of the brave individuals who have served our country. As you gather in the spirit of camaraderie and patriotism, I hope you take pride in your efforts on behalf of active-duty, reserve, and retired Warrant Officers and their families, here at home and around the world.

I wish you all the best for an enjoyable event. May God bless all our men and women in uniform, and may God bless the United States of America.
